

It Works at Work as Well

by Rev. Stephen Towles (September 13, 2009)

Giving is a habit,
An intention finding form.
It shows up everywhere,
It becomes our standard norm.

It follows us to work each day,
In how we think and feel.
It extends itself in many ways,
It is one thing that is real.

It shows up in a friendly smile,
An ear that's ready to hear.
It distracts us from our pending drama,
And wipes away all fear.

It's a friendly touch, an open door,
A handshake warm and kind.
It's flexible and welcome,
You become someone people find.

It is confidence in the face of struggle,
In knowing God is there.
When emotional storms are present,
It knows the universe is fair.

It is standing in our divinity,
An instrument of God's good.
It wipes away all resentment,
Just as you know it should.

It is giving of our divinity,
In thought and word and deed.
It is extending the greatest good we can,
To all who are in need.

It is going the extra mile,
And finding enjoyment on the path.
It is standing in God's presence,
And transforming all the wrath.

It is a high beyond all high's,
To see God's good show up at work.
It is a simple and powerful choice,
And a self created perk.
